

James Madison University's Lean Six Sigma Certification Program Can Increase Revenue and Productivity

JMU's Lean Six Sigma Certification Programs

James Madison University's Lean Six Sigma programs are held in a 100% online format with a combination of live instructor-led sessions and self-paced assignments.

The Green Belt program is one month and the Black Belt program is two months.

Registration for the Green Belt is $2,995 and the Black Belt is $4,995. Discounts for enrolling multiple students and completing both programs are available.

Please call (540) 908-4578 for more information on how we can work together.

The well-trained professionals who complete our Lean Six Sigma certification programs learn how to drive strategic process improvements that can help your organization operate efficiently and realize tremendous cost savings. Here are some ways your organization can benefit from having your team members earn their JMU Lean Six Sigma Certification:

- 1 Research and analytical thinking
Teams trained to implement Six Sigma methodologies are better equipped to make decisions and take actions based on what yields the best results for your customers or clients. Improved customer satisfaction and loyalty increases demand.
- 2 Remove unnecessary and redundant steps in your process
Lean Six Sigma trained professionals have the training necessary to lead processes that create products and services that are both efficient and high-quality.
- 3 Save time and money
Employees trained by JMU's Lean Six Sigma program are valuable team members with the skills needed to maximize profitability and productivity by eliminating mistakes and wasted resources.
- 4 Create a competitive advantage
Receive the benefits of having employees who are constantly leading continuous improvement efforts and consistently positioning your brand to stand out.
